The SPEAKER. The Chair would state that he desired to appoint the gentleman from New York, Mr. LAW, on War Claims at No. 4, and Mr. WALDO upon Claims, the place he has heretofore had; but in the clerical work of making up the lists the names were interchanged. The correction will now be made. The Chair thinks that is the only clerical error and desires to call attention to the fact that he interrupted the Clerk while reading the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures, thinking there was a mistake, but there was none, so that it will stand as arranged and as first reported.

DISPOSITION OF USELESS EXECUTIVE PAPERS.

The SPEAKER. The Chair lays before the House a letter from the Postmaster-General, transmitting a schedule of papers and documents not needed in the transaction of business and having no permanent value or historical interest.

In accordance with the law the Chair announces the following appointment of members of the Joint Select Committee for the Disposition of Useless Executive Papers:

ARTHUR L. BATES, of Pennsylvania, and JOSHUA F. C. TALBOTT, of Maryland.

SALARIES OF OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES.

The SPEAKER laid before the House joint resolution 58, with Senate amendments.

The Senate amendments were read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out "nineteenth" and insert "twenty-first." Amend the title so as to read: "Joint resolution to pay the officers and employees of the Senate and House of Representatives their respective salaries for the month of December, 1907, on the 21st day of said month."

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House concur in the Senate amendments.

The question was taken, and the amendments were agreed to.

The resolution as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read a third time, and passed.

The SPEAKER. If there be no objection, the Chair will sign the joint resolution for the pay of officers and employees which has just been agreed to and laid before the House, the Committee on Enrolled Bills not having had time to report upon it.

There was no objection.

COMMITTEE APPOINTMENT.

The SPEAKER announced the appointment of Mr. WALDO of New York to the Committee on War Claims.

PURCHASE AND DISTRIBUTION OF SEEDS.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Speaker, by the direction of the Committee on Appropriations, I submit the following privileged report and ask unanimous consent that it be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER. From the Committee on Appropriations, the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY] reports the resolution (H. J. Res. 66), making appropriations to supply deficiency in the appropriations for the purchase and distribution of valuable seeds, and asks unanimous consent that it may be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. The Clerk will report the joint resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, etc. That to supply a deficiency occasioned by the destruction of the seed warehouse used by the Department of Agriculture in the city of Washington November 6, 1907, in the appropriation "Purchase and distribution of valuable seeds," including each and every object authorized by law and specified in the appropriation of $238,000, except the provision for the purchase of foreign seed, under this title in the "Act making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908," approved March 4, 1907, the sum of $50,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, what is the proposition?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY], from the Committee on Appropriations, reports the joint resolution which has just been read, with the request that it be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I desire to know of the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY] if it is possible to have ten minutes of general debate. My colleague from the First District of Georgia [Mr. EDWARDS] desires to make a few remarks to the committee if that much time for debate can be given to him.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. BARTLETT] I would say it is entirely possible to have ten minutes, or any length of time that the House may see fit, but under the circumstances I could not consent to general debate on this proposition, for the reason that I understand that the Senate will not after to-day transact any business.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. The Senate has adjourned until Saturday, Mr. Speaker, I understand.

Mr. TAWNEY. It is very necessary that this measure shall be put through.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. They could not put it through to-day.

Mr. TAWNEY. I understand that the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. EDWARDS], colleague of the gentleman who has made the suggestion [Mr. BARTLETT], desires to address the House on a bill which he has introduced. It is not at all germane to the appropriation.

Mr. MANN. Will the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY] yield?

Mr. TAWNEY. Certainly.

Mr. MANN. I simply want to say that I desire to call up the privilege resolution in reference to the distribution of rooms and the manner of the allotment of the same, and I hope there will be no protracted debate which will send Members of the House away before that resolution is called up, because it certainly will be to the convenience of the Members to be able to consider that resolution while they are here.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will permit me, my request was for no protracted debate that would send anybody away that I know of, as the gentleman from Illinois suggests.

Mr. TAWNEY. If the gentleman from Georgia will permit me, I will suggest this: That if he will ask unanimous consent that his colleague may address the House for ten minutes upon this joint resolution or upon any subject he sees fit to talk about, I think the House will grant that request, and that will relieve me.

Mr. BARTLETT of Georgia. Pending that request, Mr. Speaker, for unanimous consent, I ask that my colleague [Mr. EDWARDS] from the First District of my State be permitted to address the House in general debate for ten minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I want to ask the gentleman if he will yield me a couple of minutes or a minute when we get into debate?

Mr. TAWNEY. I will yield to the gentleman a minute or two minutes.

The SPEAKER. The Chair hears no objection.

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY]? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Speaker, it is not necessary for me to occupy the time of the House in explaining the necessity for this deficiency appropriation. It is generally known to Members of the House that on the 6th of last month the seed storehouse used by the Agricultural Department for storing and making up packages of seed for distribution was destroyed by fire. At that time there were about 8,000,000 packages of seed stored there and about 90 per cent of the bulk seed stored there. In consequence of the fire these packets of seed were destroyed and a large quantity of the bulk seed. The Department usually purchases these seeds under contract. The time being so short, it was necessary for them to endeavor to get seeds from the seed men, which they have succeeded in doing, and at the request of the Department these seed men have shipped the seed to the Agricultural Department in Washington, or a sufficient quantity of seed to make up the loss occasioned by the fire. The Department, however, has not accepted these seed, and can not accept them until Congress authorizes the purchase and appropriates the money to pay for them, and in order that the seed may be distributed in those States where it is necessary to distribute them at this time, the Department of Agriculture must secure this authorization and appropriation before the holiday recess; and for that reason the Committee on Appropriations have reported this joint resolution at this time.

I now yield one minute to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, on yesterday I was in my office at work all day, except the time taken up in making a call to see the President on some official business and the Secretary of the Navy. I picked up the Washington Herald this morning, and find this:

JOHN WESLEY GAINES leads charge on new House Appropriation Committee.

After referring to a noise "that might have suggested post-Thanksgiving football enthusiasm," etc., in or near the committee room, the paper says:

It was only the free-seed contingent, led by JOHN WESLEY GAINES, executing a mass play on the Committee on Appropriations.

I brand the writer of that as a liar and the statement as false, absolutely, Mr. Speaker. [Applause.]

Mr. EDWARDS of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, early in my life, while toiling upon a farm way down in Georgia, I purposed in my heart that if I ever was in a position where I could say or do anything in the interests of the farmers, the backbone of our country, I would take advantage of the opportunity. It is therefore with pleasure and pride that my voice is raised to-day in this my first speech in Congress in behalf of that great class of our most useful citizens and in the interest of my own State.

On the first day of this session of Congress, the day that I was sworn in as a Representative, I introduced the following bill:

A bill (H. R. 575) for the distribution of the cotton-tax fund.

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby authorized and directed to pay out the money constituting the cotton-tax fund, now held in the Treasury of the United States of America and known as the cotton-tax fund, the levy and collection of which was held to be illegal by the Supreme Court of the United States, to the several States from which the said illegal tax was levied and collected; each of said States to be paid back the sum that was so collected, with interest thereon at the rate of 3 per cent, to be calculated from the time of the collection thereof; the same to be used by the several States to which said funds are to be paid as may be determined and provided by the legislatures of the said several States sharing in this distribution.

This bill has been referred to the Committee on War Claims, and ordered printed.

I want it distinctly understood at the outset that I am not particular as to the form of the bill that the committee might report back to the House, since it has for its one general purpose the distribution of this fund and in the right way. There have been one or two other bills introduced along this same line, the forms of which are a little broader than the one introduced by myself. It is not my purpose for a moment to quibble about the form. What we want, and what I sincerely hope we can get, is an equitable distribution of this enormous sum of money, that it might, if possible, go back to the parties from whom it was exacted, or to their heirs if it is impossible to pay it back to the parties themselves. Of course it will be impossible to pay it back to the parties in hundreds of cases, for many of the parties from whom it was collected are now dead.

Before going further, I wish to cite the act under which this tax on cotton was collected. The levy and collection of this tax was authorized by an act of Congress, July 1, 1862—more readily found in the Twelfth Statutes, page 465, providing for the levy and collection of a certain amount on each pound of raw cotton. In accordance with this act, which was the first on the subject, the enormous sum of $68,072,388.99 was collected. By reading this act it is clear that it was aimed at the cotton producers of the cotton-growing States. If not aimed at the cotton growers, why was the tax not levied upon the manufactured article, so that the burden of the tax would have been more evenly distributed upon all wearing articles produced out of the cotton raised in the United States? It is clear that it was intended as a punitive measure instead of a measure to raise revenue. By reference to the date of the act authorizing the levy of this tax, it will be remembered that at that time none of the cotton-growing States had representation in the Congress passing the act. It was, in truth, a taxation without representation.

Raw cotton was found in some of the States that do not grow or produce cotton, and the tax was of course levied upon it. But don't you know that the tax on each pound of cotton was figured out, the farmer paying the tax, before the buyers bought the cotton? This enormous sum, then, was taxed out of the farmers of the cotton-growing States in the South and Southwest.

I requested and obtained from the Treasury Department a statement showing the amount collected under this tax on cotton, showing the States that would share in this distribution under my bill, and the years in which the collections were made, and it is as follows:

INTERNAL-REVENUE TAX RECEIPTS.

This act was in operation until February 3, 1868, as appears in the Fifteenth Statutes, page 34, when it was repealed by an act of Congress, and which repealing act reads as follows: "That all cotton grown in the United States after the year 1867 shall be exempt from internal tax," etc. This repealing act was not passed until protest after protest had been registered against this unjust discrimination. It was contended by the ablest lawyers in the country that the act authorizing the tax was not only an unfair measure, but was unconstitutional. The Constitution provides in Article I, section 2, clause 3, that "Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States." Section 8, clause 1 of Article I, provides that "The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States, but all duties, imposts, and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States." Section 9, clause 4 of Article I of the Constitution further provides: "No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken." Clause 5 of that same article and section says: "No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any State." The fifth amendment to the Constitution provides: "Nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation." The tenth amendment to the Constitution provides that "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States, respectively, or to the people."

Remedy was asked through the courts against the enforcement of this cotton tax, but at that time even our courts were blinded by sectional hatred and could not be made to see the clearness of the Constitution on this point, or if they were made to see it certain it is they were not made to give an opinion that would correctly construe the Constitution and mete out justice. It was not until years after that unfortunate war between the States that our Supreme Court rendered a decision that means that the act of July 1, 1862 (12 Stats., 465), under which these amounts were collected, was unconstitutional. It means that if it means anything at all. It is possible that the court did not have the cotton act in mind when this decision was rendered. The case that I refer to is to be found in the One hundred and fifty-eighth United States Reports, page 601. Among other things this case holds:

In distributing the power of taxation the Constitution retained to the United States the absolute power of direct taxation, but granted to the Federal Government the power of the same taxation upon condition that in its exercise such taxes should be apportioned among the several States according to numbers, and this was done in order to protect the States, who were surrendering to the Federal Government so many sources of income, the power of direct taxation, which was their principal remaining resource.

Taxes on real estate being indisputably direct taxes, taxes on the rents or income of real estate are equally direct taxes.

Taxes on personal property or on the income of personal property are likewise direct taxes.

In the light of these quotations from the Constitution itself, as to the meaning of which I can not see how there could have ever been any honest doubt, and in the light of this decision of the Supreme Court, it is clear that the acts authorizing this tax are unconstitutional and invalid. The horrible fact remains, however, that our National Government has without authority of law exacted from a large number of her citizens money that it has no right to. The fact also remains that this money, despite the unconstitutionality of the act under which it was collected, is still withheld from the owners thereof.

It was a Republican Congress that saw the injustice of this tax and passed an act on February 3, 1868, repealing the tax on cotton. I can not think there was much doubt in the minds of the members of that Congress as to the constitutionality of the act. It is my opinion that they just simply knew that it was unconstitutional and unjust, and hence repealed it. I can not think there is a man under the sound of my voice, no matter what quarter of the country he is from, who is to-day honestly of the opinion that the tax on cotton was constitutional. It was a Republican Congress that imposed the tax, it was a Republican Congress that repealed it, now why not a Republican Congress go a little further and make restitution by disbursing this fund to those, or their heirs, who have been wronged by that tax? [Applause.]

It is not my purpose to open any memory of that unfortunate war. It is not my purpose to argue this matter from a sectional standpoint. Such arguments are wrong. [Applause.] I don't want it considered from a sectional standpoint. To evade that I have made the provisions of this bill such that the Government can pay the amount collected from each State back to the State from which it was collected and let that State say through its legislature what shall be done with the fund. In my State I am sure it would be given back to those people from whom it was collected, if they are to be found, and if not, to their heirs; and if there can be found neither the party from whom it was collected nor their heirs, then to the Confederate veterans or used for educational purposes. [Applause from minority.]

The amount levied upon and collected from citizens of Georgia is more than that of any other State. The amount that would go to Georgia under a distribution of this kind would be $11,897,094.98. I have introduced this bill believing that I can in no better way serve my people than to aid in this movement that would mean the return of $11,897,094.98 to the pockets of Georgia's citizens, which was wrongfully taken from them and which is being wrongfully withheld from them. [Applause from minority.]

It will be an easy matter to find out from whom the tax was collected. That information can or ought to be gotten from the Treasury Department; and it will be possible, I am sure, to return this money to the parties, or their heirs, from whom it was collected.

It is now pretty generally conceded by all fair-minded men from every quarter of the country that this tax act was unconstitutional and unjust. It is generally conceded, I say, by fair-minded men from every quarter of the country that the legislation authorizing this tax was not only wrong in principle but wrong in expediency. [Applause.]

Why cotton was selected out of the numerous other agricultural products for this taxation has never been fully explained, though it is generally believed that it was aimed at the Southern States and no doubt was thought to be a good way in which to punish the Confederate veterans, who came mainly from the cotton-growing States, and upon whose shoulders the weight of this unjust taxation fell.

As I have already said, it is not my purpose to inject into this argument any sectionalism or to say anything that will awaken old memories or prolong sectional feeling growing out of that unfortunate but inevitable war between the States. I am as loyal to my State and to the Southland as any of the sons of that section. I am the son of a private Confederate soldier, who with his colleagues in arms fought for principles that they thought were right. [Applause.] I am not now, nor never shall be, ashamed of my heritage. On the other hand, while I love the South and her noble heroes and patriotic sons, I have every respect for the heroes who wore the blue, and who also fought for principles that they thought were right. [Renewed applause.] The fate of war, and superior numbers, decreed that the Union should be perpetuated. Let us hope that it will be perpetuated for all time. That war makes up the saddest chapter in our country's whole history from its foundation to the present time. We are all glad that it is in the past, and we are all glad that we are a reunited people forever. [Applause.] Above all else we are glad that we are Americans and that we have the grandest country in all the world. [Renewed applause.]

It is now forty-two years since the close of that unfortunate war between the States, and without any feeling save a love for my country and its whole people, as a native Georgian I have introduced this bill to right a wrong growing out of the passions of that dark hour in our country's history. [Applause.] The Government should refund the amount that was arbitrarily collected from a single article of our agricultural wealth and which is now conceded to have been an unconstitutional use of power. Our nation was founded upon principles of honesty and justice. We love to think of our Government as the embodiment of honesty and justice. [Applause.] But, Mr. Speaker, how are we to think of it in this light if it continues to hold this sum of money that it clearly has no right to? What are other people to think of us? This is all a part of our records and of our history. It would not only be the right thing to do, but a beautiful thing to do, for the Congress of the United States to lay aside all memory of the war between the States, forget that imaginary Mason and Dixon's line, just remember that we are one people, of one country, with a general purpose to do right, and refund by an act this sum of money to its rightful and lawful owners. The people of the South, who are perhaps more largely interested in this fund than people from any other part of the country, are as loyal and patriotic to the Government as those of any other part of the country, those who wore the blue not even excepted. Then why should this money that was exacted as a punitive measure still be held by the Government? [Applause.]

Georgia's condition at the time of the collection of this tax, as now, was that of leadership in wealth and progress among her Southern sisters—the elements which conspired to win for her the proud title of the "Empire State of the South." But no matter what may have been her wealth then, or what it may be now, she is not for that reason to be debarred from the equities which obtain in similar cases. She was wrongfully taxed in the sum of $11,897,094.98, and my object is to obtain a return of that money to the State, to be refunded to its rightful owners. [Loud applause.]

I shall digress for a few moments to present a few statistics showing the comparative condition of the State in the years 1860 and 1900 and 1905-6. Her cotton production in 1860 was 701,840 bales, which had increased in 1906 to 1,670,448, being excelled in the latter year in cotton production by the single State of Texas. In 1906 Georgia produced 12 per cent of the entire cotton crop of the country. In the same year she produced of sea-island cotton 13,888,700 pounds, or 57 per cent of the entire crop. Her cotton-seed products had a value of $10,762,331. Her other productions in 1860 and her present productive power are best shown by the following parallel columns for 1860 and 1905:

Thus, despite the ravages of war, Georgia is found in line, like the rest of the Southern States, loyal and patriotic to the flag, doing full and energetic duty as a proud State of the American Union. In the matter of the cotton tax she and her sister States that felt the levy of the tax have been wronged, and it is but right that a great country like the United States should proceed to do those thus wronged full and exact justice.

I call this to your attention at this time so that if my bill is favorably reported back to the House by the committee to which it has been referred you will fully understand my position and my reasons for the introduction of the bill. I hope that the committee will act favorably upon my bill, or some other bill along the same line, and that it will be referred back to the House for its consideration; and I hope that justice will no longer be blinded by sectional hatred, but that you will realize the wrong that has been inflicted upon your brothers, and that it will be your pleasure to give the bill your support, and thereby return to those from whom this tax was collected every cent of their money, with interest, that the records and history of our great common country may be cleared up, and that it may be said without any reservation or exception that our Government is not only truly good and great, but scrupulously honest and just to its citizens. [Prolonged applause.]

Mr. TAWNEY. I yield to the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. WALLACE] to make a request.

Mr. WALLACE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to print remarks in the Record on the subjects of income and inheritance tax, good roads, and the tariff in relation to the farmer and home builder.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask for the passage of the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed; and being engrossed, was accordingly read the third time and passed.

On motion of Mr. TAWNEY a motion to reconsider the vote by which the joint resolution was passed was laid on the table.

LOCATION OF GRANT MEMORIAL.

Mr. MCCALL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the joint resolution which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

House joint resolution No. 77.

Resolved, etc., That the operation of the provision of law authorizing the location of the Grant Memorial upon the unoccupied portion of the Botanical Garden be, and the same is hereby, suspended until the 1st day of May, 1908.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. I object.

Mr. MCCALL. I will ask the gentleman to reserve his objection for a moment.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. I am willing to reserve the objection, retaining the right to make the objection.

Mr. MCCALL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say a word to explain the purpose of the resolution. The provision of law referred to authorizes the location of the Grant memorial upon any unoccupied portion of the Botanical Garden. Some time during the last autumn operations were begun to locate the memorial upon what many believed to be an occupied portion of the Botanical Garden, contrary to the spirit of the act. The place where it was proposed, and is now proposed, to put the memorial is occupied by the main sewer running from the Capitol; but more important than that, it is occupied by some very beautiful historical trees. I think as one of the prime objects of a botanical garden is to cultivate trees, that it might well be said there is an occupancy of that portion of the gardens. There is an unoccupied portion of the gardens where this monument can be placed. It may be that this construction of the law is not correct. I believe, however, that the matter should be inquired into by Congress. As a result of the protests made, operations were suspended until the assembling of Congress, with the purpose of giving it an opportunity to act. But the committees had not been appointed in this House until to-day, and we are so soon to take a recess that practically we will have no opportunity to act until after the holidays.

I believe that this is a very important matter. I think that the unnecessary destruction of beautiful trees would be an act of vandalism, and I think the Committee on the Library should have an opportunity carefully to consider the matter, and I promise that it will do so immediately after the holidays and report to the House. I imagine that the gentlemen having this matter in charge will not proceed in view of what has been done and the inability of Congress to act on the subject and in the condition in which things are now; but in order to make certain, I have introduced this resolution, and have asked unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

Mr. SHERLEY. If the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. SMITH] will withhold his objection, I would like to make a statement.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. If I can reserve it further, I will do so.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the gentleman from Kentucky having time to make a statement?

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Reserving my right to object.

The SPEAKER. Certainly.

There was no objection.

Mr. SHERLEY. Mr. Speaker, this morning I introduced into the House a bill amending that portion of the appropriation bill passed on the 30th of June, 1906, which authorizes the erection of this monument to General Grant in the Botanical Garden. The amendment proposed is that in the erection of the monument those historical or other trees planted in such grounds shall not be moved or in any way disturbed. I simply want to add to the statement made by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. McCALL] as to the importance that this matter be delayed until Congress can have opportunity to express its will. Certainly whatever may be said as to the original authorization of the erection of this statue in the Botanical Garden, no one will deny that at that time it was never contemplated that the condition that now confronts us would occur. No one for a moment thought that in the erection of the statue there would be a destruction of these famous trees. And while nobody, certainly no one from my section of the country, would want to do anything in the slightest degree to prevent the erection of a proper memorial to that great general of the civil war whom the South remembers as a generous victor and as a most generous President to that section of the country, still we do believe that a proper recognition of his memory can be had without the destruction of a great historic tree planted by a great Kentuckian, and we hope that the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. SMITH], in his desire to see progress made with this memorial to General Grant, will not force a situation that will necessitate the destruction of the Crittenden peace tree. It has been suggested that that tree could be removed. To remove it, however, practically means to kill it. Its size and character render such removal simply a method of killing, and the resolution offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. McCALL] simply stays the matter until Congress can express its will in the premises. I trust that the gentleman will see proper to withdraw his objection.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, I must insist upon my objection. It is not my desire to do any of the things these gentlemen seem to believe we desire to do. I want this resolution to go to the Committee on the Library, where it belongs.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Will the gentleman permit me to ask him a question?

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Certainly; still insisting upon my objection.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Has the gentleman any assurance or does the gentleman believe that if we fail to take any action at this time these people will not take advantage of the delay and remove or cut down the tree?

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. I do not believe they will if the delay is not unreasonable; but the contract has been let and damages are already accruing to the contractors. I do not think they are going to wait until next May. This Committee on the Library can act at once, and I think there will be no disposition on their part to cut off action.

Mr. SHERLEY. Would the gentleman withdraw objection if an amendment were made to the resolution offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. McCALL] fixing the 1st of March as the date?

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. I will not withdraw the objection under any circumstances.

Mr. MANN. Does the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. SMITH] think that under the original act providing that this memorial might be located on "unoccupied space" the Commissioners have the right to place it in a space which is occupied with trees and shrubbery and to remove those trees to put the memorial in?

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. I will say to the gentleman that when the law provides for erecting a memorial 250 feet in length in the Botanic Gardens in "unoccupied space" and there is no place where there is no tree or shrub for 250 feet in a straight line, I think that the law meant that trees and shrubs were not occupants of space.

Mr. MANN. But the gentleman is mistaken. There are places in the Botanical Garden, and there were plenty of places in it at the time this bill became a law, that were 250 feet in length.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Not east of Second street.

Mr. WILLIAMS. There are plenty of places without any historic trees like this.

Mr. McCALL. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, I shall not ask the time of the House to show why this memorial should go where the law now provides it shall be placed. I think I can show it ought to go just where it has been located by Mr. Secretary Root, by Mr. Secretary Taft, by the chairman of the Joint Committee on the Library, Mr. Wetmore, and by General Dodge, the greatest survivor of the civil war, and where the family of General Grant want it placed. I do not want to take the time of the House at this time to do that. This resolution has been reported by no committee. I want a hearing by the committee before this order to locate the memorial shall be vacated at the behest of a portion of the people of Washington who—some of them, in my judgment—are seeking other ends than the protection of these trees. I want these trees protected and they shall be protected if I have my way about it. But I am not in favor of passing the resolution, without reference to a committee, removing the memorial from the place where it has been located in accordance with the will of the family of General Grant, and upon the judgment of everybody who has had anything to do with its location under the act of Congress.

Mr. WILLIAMS. This resolution does not remove it; it merely postpones action.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Until next May. It has been located on this ground by action of the Commission created by Congress since the summer of 1903, and now, when the contract is let and the excavation for the foundation is being made, it is proposed to postpone it, without a hearing before the committee. I insist upon my objection. [Applause.]

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Iowa objects.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. It has been suggested that I have not made myself entirely clear. I wish to state that in my judgment if the committee takes up this resolution in reference to the Grant memorial and proceeds immediately to its disposition before the 1st of February, that the Commission ought not to proceed to destroy any of these trees in the meantime. I do not believe it will, although I disclaim any authority to speak for the Commission in that respect.

ALLOTMENT OF INDIVIDUAL OFFICE ROOMS.

The rooms on the first, second, third, and fourth floors of the House Office Building not hereby assigned or reserved shall be subject to allotment to Members of the House, other than the Speaker and chairmen of committees, in the following manner:

On Thursday, the 9th day of January, 1908, immediately after the reading of the Journal, the names of the Members of the House entitled to be allotted rooms shall be called by the Clerk in the order and manner provided by Rule 32 of the House Rules regulating the drawing of seats, and a Member as his name is thus announced may immediately designate his choice of one undesignated office room by giving the temporary number thereof to the Clerk, in accordance with the plats accompanying this resolution. Any Member may be represented in his absence by a colleague. The rooms so designated by Members shall be, and are hereby, assigned to such Members, respectively, as their individual office rooms, and the room assigned to any Member in the foregoing manner or in the manner hereafter provided may be held by such Member so long as he shall remain continuously a Member or Member-elect of the House of Representatives, or until he shall relinquish the same, subject, however, to the control of the House at all times.

Any Member or Member-elect of the House may file with the Superintendent of the Capitol Building and Grounds a request in writing that any individual office room be assigned to him whenever it shall become vacant. If only one such request has been made for any room which shall have become vacant, the room shall be assigned as requested. If two or more requests are made for the same vacant room, preference shall be given to the Member making the request who has been longest in continuous service as a Member and Member-elect of the House of Representatives. If two or more Members with equal length of continuous service make request for the same vacant room, preference shall be given to the one first preferring his request. A Member making request for assignment of a vacant room may withdraw the same at any time, and no Member shall have pending at the same time more than one such request.

The assignment of a new room to a Member, upon his request, or the appointment of any Member having an individual office room as chairman of a committee having a committee room, shall act as a relinquishment by him of the room previously assigned to him.

Members having rooms assigned to them in the foregoing manner may exchange rooms one with another until the 1st day of April, 1908, by giving notice to the Superintendent of the Capitol Building and Grounds prior to said date of such exchange, and the rooms so exchanged shall be considered as originally allotted in that manner. Thereafter Members may exchange rooms, but such exchange shall be valid only so long as both Members making the exchange shall remain continuously Members or Members-elect of the House.

The Superintendent of the Capitol Building and Grounds shall keep a record of the allotments herein provided for, exchanges which may be made, requests for vacant rooms which may be filed and the allotment thereof, which record shall be open for the inspection of any Members or Members-elect of the House.

For the purposes of this resolution, Delegates and Commissioners entitled to seats on the floor of the House shall be treated the same as Members.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, the resolution which the committee have reported seems to me to speak quite clearly for itself. There are in that new building—

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, may I interrupt the gentleman just far enough to ask whether this is not a unanimous report of the special committee?

Mr. MANN. It is a unanimous report of the special committee.

There are 410 rooms in the new office building available for office rooms. There are in the House 396 Members, including Delegates and the Porto Rican Commissioner. If we had provided a plan for assigning to each Member of the House, including chairmen of committees, a room in the office building, there would have been no opportunity at all to relieve any of the committees; but in the proposition which we present, providing that the chairmen of committees can not have individual rooms, it is hoped in the end that the committees which have much work to do will be provided with at least two rooms and that those committees which are now assigned in the Terrace will be provided for elsewhere. There are 62 chairmen of committees. Deducting those from the total membership of the House would leave 334. There is one vacancy which will not be filled at once and one which will be filled by the swearing in of the new Member, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. Slemm], immediately after the holidays. We have assigned and reserved of these office rooms 73. In the first place, 36 rooms to 17 committees. There are four rooms assigned to the committee stenographers. One room is a large general committee room, where any committee may have hearings when a very large number of people are to be heard. There are, in addition, reserved 32 rooms, 30 of these being intended as possibly for committees in the future. There are two rooms which we thought better to reserve in connection with the dining room, that we might have two private dining rooms, in case a delegation desired to have a luncheon by themselves. That will leave 337 rooms for allotment among the 334 Members of the House, outside of the chairmen of committees. So that the last person who has the choice of a room under the plan we present will, in fact, have a choice of one out of five rooms.

It is interesting, possibly, in this connection, Mr. Speaker, to recall to the House the fact that a hundred years ago the House of Representatives first occupied permanently the hall where now is Statuary Hall. It is fifty years ago on the 16th of this month, the day the committee presented this report, that the House first met in this Hall. This illustrates the growth of the country and of the House.

Now, under the proposition which we present, Mr. Speaker, the drawing of the rooms is very much the same as it is for the drawing of the seats. You will notice the large plats in front, a plat of each floor of the building. It is proposed to have these plats mounted on boards, put on frames, so that they will easily be reached by any Member of the House, both with his eye and with his hand. It is proposed to have the names of Members drawn in the same manner that they are now drawn in the selection of seats, and as a Member's name is drawn he walks to the front and writes across the room on the plat his name, or directs the clerk who will be there for that purpose to write the Member's name. Members can thereby if they have a choice, if they have a preference and there is any room left which they prefer, exercise that preference. They can also tell when Members have drawn ahead of them the rooms which they have drawn. It will enable many Members of the House to get rooms which will be, or can be, connected with each other if it be desirable, as I think likely it will be. We may have marked on the plats those rooms now connected by doors, but the building is so arranged that any two Members having any two rooms adjoining can have them if they desire connected by a door being put through overnight, the arrangement being left for that purpose.

Under the proposition which we present the choice of the room is in the first instance by lottery or by chance so far as the right of choice is concerned. But we also present a proposition which provides that thereafter Members who have drawn their rooms as long as they remain Members of the House shall retain the rooms which they draw unless they voluntarily relinquish them, and as rooms become vacated they will be assigned to Members who make requests for them and where more than one Member makes a request the Member the longest in continuous service shall have the preference, and where two Members of the same length of service make a request the one first making the request shall have the preference.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. May I ask the gentleman a question?

Mr. MANN. I will yield to the gentleman.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. I would like to ask whether the committee considered the plan of allotting these rooms in the new office building to delegations by States? A Member of Congress is more interested in the other Members of his own State than anyone else. I would like to know whether the gentleman's committee considered that in the assignment of these rooms, whether it would not be more advisable to have the members of each delegation located near each other.

Mr. MANN. We did consider that, and the gentleman will see in a moment that it is wholly impracticable to do that unless the committee itself should report to the House the rooms which are to be occupied by each delegation.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Would it not be possible to let each State draw and have the selection according to the order of the drawing.

Mr. MANN. If the gentleman will allow I will endeavor to make it plain. If New York should be drawn first, it would be easy for the State of New York to select its number of rooms consecutively, but if New York should be drawn last there would be no place in the building where there would be that number of rooms on the same floor, much less alongside of each other; and the same would be true of a majority of the delegations. If the gentleman's State, Alabama, should be drawn half way down, the chances are that he would not find ten rooms located near each other without any obstruction between them. If it were possible to locate them, letting the large States draw first and select theirs, and then the smaller delegations draw last, the gentleman's suggestion might be practicable; but because it is not possible to do that, because it is not possible to foresee that New York, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Missouri, or the other larger delegations, would be drawn first, the plan seemed impracticable.

Mr. MURDOCK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman why the committee gave preference to seniority in a subsequent allotment of the rooms—what actuated the committee?

Mr. MANN. Well, Mr. Speaker, we thought that after the original drawing took place, it was impracticable to have a new drawing every term of Congress to begin with; that if a Member had a room and had his library and papers in that room, he would not wish to change the room at the beginning of every term of Congress, so that it was not desirable to have a new drawing at the beginning of every term of Congress.

Mr. MURDOCK. But I think the gentleman misunderstands my question.

Mr. MANN. Oh, Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will pardon me, I will answer the question.

Mr. MURDOCK. But the gentleman has not answered it as yet.

Mr. MANN. I understood the gentleman's question. Mr. Speaker, I have explained why we did not provide for an allotment at the beginning of each term of Congress. That leaves a certain number of vacant rooms as the Members go out from term to term, and we thought—and the reason, it seems to me, appeals to everybody—that in making the assignment of these vacated rooms it was right to give preference to those who were the longest in continuous service. The reason for that appeals to me. The gentleman from Kansas [Mr. MURDOCK] is as well informed upon the conditions as I am. He may have his opinion and I may have mine. It is for the House to determine. We thought our resolution to provide the best plan, because it could in no wise injure the new Members of Congress coming in. They make their requests for assignment of rooms. There will be a room for every Member-elect after each preceding term is ended. That Member may come here under this proposition and make his request as a Member-elect and obtain the room which he requests without difficulty, unless he desires to take the best room in the building that some other Member wants who has longer service, in which case he will not obtain it.

Mr. Speaker, it will frequently occur that two Members desire to have rooms adjoining. In course of time one Member may manage to get a room vacated adjoining another Member's room where he desires to have his room next to the other. This will permit that in course of time, without doing any injustice to new Members, without discrimination in any way against the new Members, and it seems to me that is a fair protection to the membership of the House.

Mr. MURDOCK. Will the gentleman yield again?

Mr. MANN. With pleasure.

Mr. MURDOCK. If it is just in the one instance, the subsequent allotment, why is it not just, then, to distribute these rooms by seniority in the first place?

Mr. MANN. Oh, it would be just, Mr. Speaker, but it is not practical.

Mr. MURDOCK. It is not just, with one-third of this membership new, I will say to the gentleman.

Mr. COOPER of Texas. Mr. Speaker—

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Illinois yield to the gentleman from Texas?

Mr. MANN. I yield to the gentleman from Texas with pleasure, and I am mighty glad to see him back in the House. [Applause.]

Mr. COOPER of Texas. Mr. Speaker, it was my bad fortune to get a seat on the rim of the semicircle, and I am remote from the portion of the House that legislates, therefore I could not hear what the gentleman is stating. The question that I desire to ask is, Is this proposition to change anything contained in the proposition printed in the Record recently?

Mr. MANN. Oh, no; this is the proposition that was printed in the Record.

Mr. COOPER of Texas. And no change is made?

Mr. MANN. There is no change made.

Mr. KEIFER and Mr. SULLOWAY rose.

The SPEAKER. To whom does the gentleman from Illinois yield?

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. KEIFER].

Mr. KEIFER. Mr. Speaker, I only wanted to ask whether the committee had taken into consideration the question of the power of the Sixtieth Congress to fix a rule that is to apply to the Sixty-first.

Mr. MANN. We did, Mr. Speaker. It is perfectly patent, I may say to the gentleman from Ohio, that if the resolution we recommend shall be adopted by the House, it will not bind the Sixty-first Congress, but if the resolution be adopted by the House, I think I am safe in saying that your committee will feel that it is practically directed to bring into the House a bill which will put that portion of the resolution into a law and which will preserve the rights as against the Sixty-first Congress and establish the method of the distribution of the rooms. Of course that is for future consideration of the House.

Mr. KEIFER. If the gentleman will allow me just a moment, I want to say that I am not opposing the resolution. I think it is impracticable to attempt to regulate the matter beyond the present Congress, and I think that it ought not to be taken by the committee as the wish of the House that we should have a law that would fasten any rule upon the House with reference to its committee rooms or to the assignment of offices to Members. I therefore wish to say, I do not want an interpretation to be put upon these resolutions for adoption that the gentleman suggests.

Mr. MANN. No; but let me make this suggestion to the gentleman in that respect. I think everyone in the House will agree that when they return at the beginning of the Sixty-first Congress—

Mr. KEIFER. If they come back—

Mr. MANN. They will want to go to the rooms which they had in the Sixtieth Congress. They will not want to have all of their papers taken out and moved into another room merely on account of another drawing of rooms. Now, if the gentleman will indulge me, my suggestion has been that if this resolution passed the House we will endeavor to have through legislation a provision as to these rooms subject at all times to the control of the House. Undoubtedly we would not enact any legislation which would endeavor to take away from the House itself the control of the rooms over there, if it so desired, by resolution or rule.

Mr. KEIFER. I think, then, no legislation will be necessary.

Mr. MANN. But legislation seems to be necessary. You have no way of allotting rooms without it. I now yield to the gentleman from New Hampshire.

Mr. SULLOWAY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire of the gentleman if the room now occupied by the Committee on Invalid Pensions is disposed of?

Mr. MANN. It is not.

Mr. SULLOWAY. Very, well; if it had been I wanted to object or move to amend the proposition.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. Mr. Speaker—

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Illinois yield?

Mr. MANN. I yield very gladly.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, I only want to say a few words. The committee has been exceedingly generous to the Committee on Military Affairs in the assignment of rooms, and there have been several discussions in regard to the matter between myself and other members of the Committee on Military Affairs and this committee, and I was informed that that matter could remain open until the time came to decide it, and if agreeable to the committee it would be permitted to remain in, or otherwise such action as might be desired could be taken. After a very full conference with the members of the committee, in which all the advantages of abundant and splendid rooms were considered, with the disadvantage of the large amount of business coming before that committee, which causes the membership of this House to come there to look after their bills more often than before any other committee of the House, and in view of the fact that at the closing part of the session conference reports are the order of the day and we have large and voluminous papers to handle, the consensus of opinion of those now composing the Committee on Military Affairs was that while we had need of more room it would be ill-advised and inconvenient and not for the best interests of our business to move, and I hope the gentleman from Illinois will move to strike out the part referring to the Committee on Military Affairs and permit us to remain in the little quarters we have occupied for the last forty years.

Mr. MANN. Now, Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will pardon me again. I hope the gentleman will not ask to have that motion made and let the resolution go through as it is, and I assure the gentleman that unless a certain contingency arises we will be very glad to report in favor of moving him back. This is the situation. The committee desires very much indeed that which every Member of the House desires to see done, to give a reasonable amount of space to the Speaker of the House. We all know now that the Speaker has no private room. No Member has an opportunity to talk privately with the Speaker. The Speaker, the Clerk at the Speaker's desk, and the Speaker's secretary all occupy a small room, smaller than most of the committee rooms of the Capitol, at times without ventilation, and it is wholly bad for one's health. I do not undertake to say whether we would desire in connection with that question to make use of the room now occupied by the Committee on Military Affairs. The plans which we had hoped to work out have not yet worked out, and would not the gentleman be perfectly willing to leave the resolution as it stands, and if in the end the Committee on Military Affairs says that it does not desire to occupy these rooms in the new building, as far as I am concerned, I would be in favor of a report restoring the gentleman's committee to the room which it now has, and I have no doubt that would be agreeable to the House. Unless it came to the point where we would endeavor to seize the gentleman's room, which I think will never occur—

Mr. HULL of Iowa. Well, my understanding, Mr. Speaker, is that there has been no disposition on the part of the committee of which my friend is chairman to arbitrarily deal with any committee in any way and that that committee has exercised good taste and judgment in trying to harmonize all wishes.

I will say further to my friend from Illinois that personally I have been very much inclined to say that we had better go over and submit to the inconvenience than to be as inconvenienced as we are for want of room. But in looking the matter over and talking it over with some of the older members of the committee, who have been here a long time, I felt that I could very properly say to the gentleman that the Committee on Military Affairs desire a room where it is convenient, and in conversations that I have had both with one of the distinguished members of the Committee on Military Affairs, who is on this special committee, and with the distinguished chairman, that there will be no trouble about it if we make up our minds in that way.

Mr. MANN. I will say further to the gentleman—

Mr. HULL of Iowa. I wish to say just one word more on that proposition. Rather than to pass the resolution and let us stay where we are, or let it be effective, if the committee so desires, or pass another resolution, would it not be better just to drop out for the present? After further consideration, if they can effect the arrangement as the gentleman has outlined to me and as hinted at in the House, it is sure to put in another resolution that would move the committee. And I would not stand in the way of giving the Speaker of the House all of the room for the transaction of business that he needs. Why not leave this matter out now and pass this resolution without it?

Mr. MANN. The committee has not endeavored to compel any committee to go over to the new building. I am of the personal opinion, after having been over in the new building as much as I have been—and I suppose I have been there oftener than any other Member of the House, owing to the position which I occupy on this committee—that every committee that does not go into the new building will greatly regret it—that is, if it has the opportunity to go there. I have no doubt in my own mind that the new building will be the place where the committees will want to be and where the Members will be. But we have not endeavored to force any committee to go over. We have assigned, for instance, in this report, four rooms to the Committee on Invalid Pensions and four rooms to the Committee on Military Affairs. The Committee on Invalid Pensions have a little bit of a room down here, where the Members are put together as close as sardines in a box. We have made no assignment of the room of the Committee on Military Affairs in this report, and if after further consideration they prefer to stay in the room which they now occupy, I am satisfied that our committee will gladly make provision for that in the future, and if this is stricken out now the rooms may not be there in this order hereafter.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. MANN. Certainly.

Mr. TOWNSEND. The discussion thus far, as it seems to me, makes it possible that some of these rooms that have been assigned to committees will not be occupied by those committees, and as I understand it the whole front tier of rooms on the second floor have been set apart and not assigned. Now, I would like to ask the gentleman if he has considered what is to be done with these rooms if they are not to be occupied by the committees. Can they be reassigned to the Members of this House who prefer them to the offices which they may select; and if so, how are they going to get them?

Mr. MANN. That would remain within the control of the House and within the report of the committee. But let me say to the gentleman that there are a number of committees still down in the Terrace.

Mr. TOWNSEND. What are you going to do with the rooms there?

Mr. MANN. Undoubtedly most of those will prefer to come out of the Terrace. The rooms there, or the most of them, are not fit rooms for any committee to be in, owing to the fact that they often become leaky and damp. They are not healthy rooms.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Just in connection with that question, let me ask what is going to be done with the rooms over in the new building if they are not occupied?

Mr. MANN. We will endeavor to work it out. For instance, there will be a stationery room provided in the new building, and there will undoubtedly be a branch library provided there. Just where these rooms will be located we can not say.

We propose to reserve these north front rooms for two reasons. The first is that the north front will be less desirable to enter into at this time, owing to the fact that it is the last portion of the building to be completed; and, second, these rooms are longer rooms than the others.

Mr. TOWNSEND. What I was after, if the gentleman will permit me, if there are any left over that are more desirable rooms for office rooms in that building, how are the Members going to get those rooms?

Mr. MANN. Well, of course, the committee having charge of this can at any time report, and these rooms might be assigned to Members.

Mr. TOWNSEND. That will be a matter that will hereafter be submitted to the House if that emergency should arise.

Mr. MANN. Of course any assignment of these rooms will be submitted to the House. We have no power to assign them otherwise.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. One word more. I understand the gentleman to say that the adoption of this rule will not necessarily involve the change from the one room now occupied to the acceptance of the other in the new building.

Mr. MANN. We do not propose to force the gentleman over there if the gentleman does not want to go.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. Well, it is not a case of "the gentleman," but of the committee.

Mr. MANN. Well, I meant the committee.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. What I want to ask the gentleman is, if the House adopts this resolution, is not that an order of the House that we must go over there?

Mr. MANN. That you must go to the rooms that are allotted; that is right. But the order of the House could be changed. If our committee had known that gentlemen wanted to retain the rooms they have, they would not have provided otherwise. But my notion is that when the Members go over there they will want your committee there. If the committee do not want to go over there, I will, as far as I can, give them an opportunity to keep this cubbyhole they now occupy.

Mr. HULL of Iowa. Now, some gentlemen on the Military Committee want to hold the room that they now have and some others of the committee think that they do not. It is believed that by the adoption of this resolution the committee would have to go over there, and they feel that it would be better to have this whole matter left open, so that they may have an opportunity of seeing whether they want to go over there or not. I have no objection to its being passed at this time, with the understanding that if the Committee on Military Affairs objects to going over there, they will be able to retain the room they have.

Mr. MANN. If the gentleman insists, I would myself offer a motion to strike out the Committee on Military Affairs; but I think it is better for the Committee on Military Affairs to adopt the suggestion which we have made.

Mr. SCOTT. I understood the gentleman to say, in reply to the gentleman from Iowa, if this resolution is adopted, so far as committees assigned to quarters in the new building are concerned, they will be required to vacate their quarters in the Capitol. That is, I understand, the meaning of the phrase "except where intent is otherwise shown." The adoption of the resolution releases rooms now occupied by the committees named "except where intent is otherwise shown." It seems to me that that phrase was intended to cover the case of committees that might not want to go to the new office building, but use this building, and would not be required to vacate their present quarters.

Mr. MANN. On the contrary, the "intent" is that which is shown in this report.

Mr. SCOTT. I am glad to have that fact brought out.

Mr. MANN. The committee has endeavored to work out a plan by which the committees of the House can either have more room in the new building or more room here; but if they all remain here, of course it is impossible to provide them with additional room. If no other gentleman desires to occupy further time, I desire to offer some committee amendments.

THE SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DALZELL). The gentleman from Illinois submits the following amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend page 1 by striking out in lines 12 and 13 the following: "to the Committee on Disposition of Useless Papers in the Executive Departments, room 106." And by inserting on page 2, after line 10, the following: "to the Committee on Disposition of Useless Papers in the Executive Departments, room 206."

Page 2, lines 24, 25, and 26, strike out the words, "three hundred and six, three hundred and seven, three hundred and eight, and three hundred and nine," and insert in lieu thereof the words "three hundred and three, three hundred and four, three hundred and five, and three hundred and six."

Page 3, lines 6 and 7, strike out the words "three hundred and fifty-nine," and insert in lieu thereof the words "three hundred and fifty-seven."

Mr. MANN. This makes no substantial change at all.

The amendments were considered and agreed to.

Mr. MANN. I now move to strike out, on page 2, lines 12 and 13, the assignment to the Committee on Military Affairs. The Clerk read as follows:

Strike out the words "to the Committee on Military Affairs, rooms 113, 114, 115, and 116."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MANN. I further move to amend, on page 4, at the head of line 13, after the words "first floor," the words "rooms 113, 114, 115, and 116."

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 4, line 12, after the words "first floor," add the words "rooms 113, 114, 115, and 116."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I want to ask the gentleman what disposition he is making of these rooms covered by this amendment?

Mr. MANN. They are reserved.

Mr. HINSHAW. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Illinois how many rooms will be available for occupancy immediately after January 9?

Mr. MANN. I may say to the House that, in my judgment, and it is our expectation, the building will be open for inspection of Members immediately after the reconvening of Congress, so that everyone will have an opportunity to see the building in good shape. The rooms on the west side, the south side, and the east side are now fairly dry and would be perfectly suitable to be occupied to-day as offices; but the rooms on the north side are not ready, and it is not possible to say whether they will be ready and dry enough to be perfectly habitable when the drawing takes place, but we expect that that will be the case, so that all rooms will be in shape to be used immediately after the drawing, which takes place on January 9.

We should have provided for a drawing during this month, but we were informed that if that was done and Members used the rooms which were usable it would delay the contractor and give an excuse for delay, so that the Members would be greatly incommoded for a long time in the future.

Mr. CHANEY. I would like to ask the gentleman how the rooms are furnished—whether they are all furnished alike?

Mr. MANN. The rooms are all furnished alike. They are furnished with two roll-top desks, one being fixed for a typewriter, and a table, a case, and several chairs, including a swivel chair for the Member.

Mr. COCKRAN. Is the typewriter included?

Mr. MANN. The typewriter is not included in the furniture. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the resolution as amended.

The question was taken, and the resolution as amended was agreed to.

WITHDRAWAL OF PAPERS.

Mr. CAPRON, by unanimous consent, was given leave to withdraw from the files of the House without leaving copies papers in the case of G. W. and A. Cross, Fifty-ninth Congress, no adverse report having been made thereon.

ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly (at 2 o'clock and 21 minutes p. m.) the House, under its previous order, adjourned until Saturday, December 21, at 12 o'clock noon.
